products of southern soil and chmate, that now present a striking picture of ruin and desolation. The levees having given way before the swelling tide of the Mississippi, its waters pouring over its banks have obliterated every mark of the plowshare and the hoe, and the beautiful level plains, where but a little while ago the cotton-stalk and sugar-cane grew in rich luxuriance, is now covered by the rank forest growth indigenous to alluvial soils. Millions of acres of this land, which could be made so valuable, have been sold for faxes because they have been ruined and their owners have been impoverished for the want of that protection which the general government can alone afford; for the States, however able they might be to accomplish such an undertaking in a financial view, could af-ford no adequate relief, for reasons which are manifest. The lands which were in 1860 worth the large sum of more than $350,000,-0.0 have since that time decreased in value until they are now estimated to be worth only $100,000,000, thus stown; an act a'os n the producing taxable wealth of the country of something like $250,000,000. This, it will be seen, only comprises the direct and actual injury to the landed property, and does not include the agricultural products that have been destroyed, which it would be impossible to calculate correctly; but an approximate estimate may be made. By calculations made from data furnished by chambers of commerce, boards of trade, and facts obtained from other reliable sources of information, it from other reliable sources of information, it is estimated that the losses sustained in the overflowed country by the flood of 1874 was not less than $13,000,000, while the damage done in the succeeding year, 1875, reached $10,000,000. Thus in two years the loss of agricultural products amounts to more than $20,000,000. Since 1860 there have been seven great overflows in the Mississippi, and in some of the streams which are tributary to it, occurring in the years 1862, 1865, 1868, 1871, 1874, 1875, and 1876. While the losses inflicted by the floods of 1874 and 1875 may not be a fair standard by which to estimate the losses of the other years enumerated, yet it is estimated in a carefully-prepared paper by a prominent merchant in a large commercial city, and which I now have before me, that the destruction of cotton, sugar, rice and other southern farm products, resulting from the different overflows since 1860, would average in full value for each one of them the sum of $8,-000,000, amounting in the aggregate-leaving out the present year-to $48,000,000. This, added to the $250,000,000 of the depreciation in the value of lands, would make the enormous sum of $298,000,000 that has been subtracted from our material and active wealth within a period of filteen years, and all resulting from a single cause. At a moment when well to suggest that these shipments are not unprecedented, and to recall the fact that in under Lieutenant Phelps, and of the Tenth were less and the sources of supply open which are now closed. The liberal shipments of this month have not been effected without suit of them, so that all the property that same with us. We don't want to throw our labors away. > the morning, at the point where Lieutenant Bullis started on his scout, half-way between GALVESTON, October 2.—There is no truth in the reports telegraphed from the Rio Grande yesterday that Shafter's and Bullis's commands had met with disaster in Mexico. Both commands have returned to the American side of the river without loss. The expedition was unsuccessful, owing to the fact that the Indians had been warned of Bullis's pursuit and escaped. Twelve horses and two mules, which had been stolen from the American side of the river, were recaptured. A small body of Mexican cavairy kept upon the trail and in sight of the command during their march from San Diego river to the Rio CHICAGO, October 2.- The Times's St. Paul special says the Democratic State convention

Trial of Kailway Rioters Begun.

READING, PA., October 2.—The trial of the July railroad rioters commenced to-day. Samuel Humphreys, indicted for burning the Lebanon Valley road bridge, turned State's evidence, confessing that ne held the lamp, while a man named Smith saturated the kindling wood thrown from the upper part of the bridge by accomplices, with coal-oil, and orwings it for demonetizing silver, for passing the resumption act, for raising, expending and wasting enormous revenues, and for dolpting a high protective tariff.

Fourth—Censures the Republicans for seeping in congress men who are notoriously in favor of high tariffs, and the resumption should come as soon as the business matters of the country would permit; that the demonetization of silver was a step backward, and that the silver dollar of the old commercial value should be restored. The following nominations were made: For governor, William Banning; heutenant governor, L. L. Ames; attorney-general, John R. Jones; secretary of state, P. T. Lindholm; treasurer. John T. Meagher; railroad commissioner, H. W. Hi.
